General Martin Is In Complete Control of Situation At Panama's Request

General Strike in Progress Against Rent Profiteers At Panama

PANAMA, Oct. 12.—At the request of the Panama Government 3 battalions of United States Infantry were today occupying the city following the quelling of rent riots. General Martin has assumed complete responsibility to put down the disorder which came as the result of protests against high rent.

Panama requested troops from the United States Government a few days ago but refused to let them enter the scene of the disorders until such time as the Panama authorities would give American officials complete control. This was given before the troops members of the 23rd U. S. Infantry were brought into use.

Colon seemed quiet tonight. It now seems probable that the United States will be asked to adjudicate the situation. Chantiers and street car men struck with the rent strikers today completely tying up traffic. Others threatened to enter the strike against the rent profiteers.

No American were killed or injured in the riots.

LIFELESS BODY OF MAIL PILOT FOUND IN PLANE

BELLEFONTE, PA., Oct. 12.—An investigation was started here today into the cause of the death of Charles H. Ames, air mail pilot whose lifeless body was found in his wrecked plane at Helca Gap near here. The plane with Ames' body strapped in the seat was found yesterday by Charles De Arnett, ending a ten day hunt for the missing pilot.

It is believed by Air Mail officials that Ames becoming confused in a heavy fog piloted his ship into the mountain side being killed instantly when the plane crashed. When found the dead pilot was seated in the cockpit his right arm arised to his face as if to ward off the crash. His legs were entwined around the control stick and his parachute was strapped to his back. Sufficient gas was found in the gas tank to have completed the flight and all switches of the motor were on which leads officials to believe that death was instantaneous.

Ames was on his course and was near the Helca light, beacon for airmen, when he met his fate. Over the point where the body rested in the debris, airmen have passed each day with their cargoes of mail from New York and Chicago.

The shipment of mail in Ames' plane was intact and shortly after it was removed from the wreckage, it was on its way west in a plane piloted by F. B. Hill.

CENSUS REPORT SHOWS A LARGE INCREASE HERE

Richmond, Berkeley and Alameda have enjoyed a substantial growth since 1920, according to official estimate published yesterday by the United States census bureau.

Richmond is credited with a population of 22,530 as compared with 16,843 in 1920. These figures are considered as ultra conservative by those who are familiar with the figures that are given out by the census bureau. According to figures compiled by the Richmond Chamber of Commerce the actual population at the present time is nearer to 25,000 than the official figure.

The estimated population of Alameda published by the census bureau is 31,876, while the official census of 1920 was 28,806. Berkeley is credited with a population of 66,209 as against 56,036 in 1920.

These estimates were based on the assumption that the annual increase in the population of any city since 1920 is equal to the annual increase between 1910 and 1920, with allowance for annexation and detachments of territory.

Patent Right Of Miner Has Been Upheld

George Campbell Carson Goes From Laborer to Millionaire By Decision

HOLDS PATENT ON FURNACES

Carson Is Confined at Hospital When News That He Had Won Suit Arrives

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—From laborer to millionaire is the fate that is in store for George Campbell Carson, who today won his infringement suit against several of the biggest copper companies in the nation. According to his attorneys the amount of the final settlement will probably exceed $20,000,000 the profits which have been forthcoming from copper furnaces that have used his devices.

Carson is now confined to a bed in Ward A of the University of California hospital, but expects to be about again within a few days.

In February of this year, Carson secured judgement from the United States district court of appeals in San Francisco against the combined copper interests. The suit revolved about a patent for the side feeding of reverberatory furnaces, developed while he was a miner in Denver.

The decision of the Court of Appeals held that the American Smelting company and the Phelps-Dodge company were using the device invented by Carson on which he secured patents in 1915 and 1919.

They promptly appealed the judgement of the lower court to the Supreme court, which denied their petition for certiorari. The corporation must now render an accounting to Carson for all profits that they have made from this invention.

Authorities Ask Help in Check of Smallpox Cases

School and health authorities have started out to put an immediate check to a smallpox epidemic that threatens the schools of Richmond. Dr. C. R. Blake, commissioner of health of Richmond, announced last night.

Two cases of the disease have broken out in Roosevelt Junior high school and the children are at home under quarantine. In order to prevent any spread whatsoever, a ruling was made yesterday that no children will be allowed to attend school today unless they have been successfully vaccinated within the past six years. The parents have an alternative of keeping their children out of school for 14 days until the danger is past.

F. C. Shallenberger, principal of the school, and Dr. Blake urge that every child in the school be vaccinated in order that the epidemic may be nipped in the bud and prevent any danger from the disease.

DRAWING THE LINE

No greater piece of constructive legislation has been passed in recent years than the existing immigration law. It restricts an influx of aliens which was threatening in its volume the ideals and standards of American life. One of the most admirable feature of this law is the provision for exclusion or deportation of aliens who preach the overthrow of our government by violence.

Under this provision of the law Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary of Labor Davis have refused admission to the United States of Saklatvala, British communist delegate to the Interparliamentary congress soon to convene in the capitol at Washington. Saklatvala is an avowed bolshevik; a bold advocate of the destruction by force of all governments where private property, religion and the home are permitted to exist. The individual who would admit to his home an enemy who crosses the threshold with an avowed purpose to burn the house would manifestly be lacking in common sense. The government which would confer the privilege of admittance to a militant destroyer of the Saklatvala type would display no more intelligence.

Saklatvala represents the most dangerous type of revolutionary—the rich parlor communist. According to statements printed in London newspapers he has not been beyond accumulating large sums of money by speculating in rubber following the action of the British parliament, of which he is a member, in authorizing rubber export restrictions which have lined the pockets of British profiteers at the expense of every user of rubber tires and other articles of rubber manufacture in the United States. He is of the type of communist who revels in the notoriety involved in preaching revolutionary doctrine. He is a more dangerous incendiary than the soap box agitator who cries out for bloody revolution.

Protests have been made against the exclusion of Saklatvala on the ground that other communists are accredited delegates to the Interparliamentary congress. This is an argument not in favor of admitting this particular enemy of our government, but in favor of shutting our gates to all other aliens who come here to demand the overthrow of our institutions. It is also argued by persons anxious to be considered "liberal" that the United States should imitate England's traditional policy of permitting every revolutionary to "spout," in the belief that no harm can come from such "freedom" to preach revolution. England is eating the bitter fruit of that policy in a situation which menaces the stability of the British government, and is taking belated measures to exclude bolshevik apostles of treason and violence.

The line is now being sharply drawn between the defenders and the assailants of American institutions. There is no middle ground. Apologists and defenders of bolshevism, no matter what their affection of motive must be classified by the patriotic people of America with those enemies of the United States for whom they betray their sympathy. The loyal people of America must support public officials who refuse to compromise with treason, alien or domestic. Secretary Kellogg, Secretary Davis and President Coolidge who stands back of them, will have the militant support in the policy they are pursuing of every American intelligently loyal to the American constitution, American institutions and the American form of government.

Very likely the British restrictions on marketing rubber will give the impetus needed for extensive rubber plantations in the Philippines. That would be a highly desirable result.—Chicago News.

Mr. Poincaré in a current magazine article fixes the blame for the World war on Germany. What most Americans are wondering about now is not who started it but who got the worst of it.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Copyright 1925 by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Yellow Greens are Chosen for Evening with Darker Greens for Street and Sport.

TO discover what is the most fashionable color at any given time would be difficult. You would have to agree first on what you meant by "fashionable." A rather simple make-shift method that you might employ would be to make a list of the leading French dressmakers and opposite each name jot down the color or colors that have been predominant in their new clothes this autumn and then from this list discover the color that occurs most often. This would at least give us an idea of which way the wind blows.

Bols de rose rosewood would play an important part in any such list and so would various violet shades, but greens apparently would be even more important, for hardly one of the leading dressmakers or milliners has overlooked green as a color of importance this autumn. Some of these dressmakers—Lanvin for instance—always makes much of greens and this autumn she is using linden or tilleul green both for day and for evening. But there are other dressmakers who never have done much with green who are stressing it this autumn. Despite the prediction of certain French weather sharks we are quite sure to have a "green winter," at least in one respect. This yellowish green that is sometimes called tilleul is supremely smart for evening. Sometimes it is more yellow than green and then becomes chartreuse or even ashy, but these yellow greens are not usually chosen for daytime. There are dark soft greens for more formal wear and a bright hunter's green for sports. The frock sketched is a dancing frock for a young girl—and is of pale green crepe de chine trimmed with ribbons in darker shades.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

RAW MEAT

WE used to feel that a taste for raw meat indicated a rather savage disposition. At least no one of a peaceful quiet nature would be supposed to feed upon raw meat, and dog owners were assured that if they fed their pets raw meat very often they—the dogs—would certainly become ferocious.

Among housewives there seems to be much difference of opinion regarding this matter of cooking meat. Some mothers insist that all meat they give their children must be well cooked and others insist that well cooked meat should not be given to young children. One much quoted baby specialist prescribes slightly cooked beef and lamb chops for young children. An interesting contribution to this question is the result of the experiments recently carried on by Dr. Richet of the French Academy of Medicine. His contention was that raw meat was much more nourishing than cooked meat. He seems to have proved his point by his experiment with fish. He put two groups of fish—all of them the same age and size—into two tanks and left them there twenty days, feeding one group raw meat and the other cooked meat, under conditions otherwise identical. The raw-meat eaters developed considerably better than the cooked-meat eaters. After two hundred days he began feeding the cooked-meat eaters raw meat and those that had had raw meat he put on a diet of cooked meat, with the result that those who had previously gained proceeded to lose, while those that had developed less rapidly began now to develop rapidly.

One reason for the good effect produced by the eating of raw meat is doubtless that it contains vitamins. When Steffensen went to the Arctic several years ago he found that men that ate raw seal meat remained in good health, whereas those that found it distasteful and refused to eat it, uncooked became ill and in some cases died of scurvy. When he returned to civilization he had his theory that raw meat was rich in vitamins tested in a laboratory. He had pretty well proved it in practice and the laboratory bore him out.

"THE WIFE WHO WASN'T WANTED" with Irene Rich in a picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Eileen Mannering has consented to allow herself to be seen in a notorious inn when it is aided, in order to accomplish the defeat of her husband, John Mannering, for re-election as district attorney. His opponent, Jerome Wallace, has promised her that if he wins he will release her son, Bob, who is in jail accused of the death of a woman while speeding in a motor car. As district attorney, the elder Mannering considers it his duty to prosecute the boy.

"What of it? Good Lord, John, I want to publish a formal denial from you which will put a stop to that rot. You're enough of a politician to know such rumors will not help you on the eve of election."

"I don't know that I care to deny them, Dryden."

A firecracker before, it was now a bomb which appeared to have exploded in the editorial sanctum.

"Not deny them! See here, Mannering, are you asleep or just plain crazy?" shouted Dryden, excitedly.

"You can't throw down your party like that. Don't you realize that it would be political suicide; that your resignation would be your political death warrant? If you have no thought for yourself, think of us. Surely you owe some gratitude to the men who for years have staked their time, brains and money on your political fortunes."

John sank back in his chair.

Eileen, shrouded in a great cloak, entered and glanced timidly about.

"Sit down; there's no sense in standing up when you can sit down," said Slick, indicating a chair.

"Mrs. Mannering, meet Simmie," said Slick, graciously.

"Hello," said that worthy coolly.

"Well, now, seeing Simmie is the gent you got business with an' two is company, while three is a crowd, I guess I'd better beat it," continued Slick, edging towards the door.

As heedless of Simmie's presence as if he did not exist, Eileen leaped to her feet and started after Slick.

"Wait. Mr. Wallace promised me a paper. Where is it?"

Slick seemed much embarrassed.

"That paper? Lady, I'm certainly glad you reminded me of it. I'd a hated to have forgotten it." Ostentatiously he produced the document in question. But when Eileen reached for it he smiled at her as if she had been a wayward child and coolly passed it over to Simmie.

"I guess I'd better let Simmie take care of that for you," he said, playfully. "But don't you worry; you got nothin' to worry about a-tall. He's goin' to give it to you later on an' everything is comin' out fine."

"I'm perfectly able to take care of it myself," she began when she was interrupted by the entrance of the waiter with the menu.

And ever ready to take advantage of an opportunity, Slick took advantage of the open door to slip out of the room and thence to a telephone which gave him convenient access to the ear of Mr. Wallace, who no doubt was much pleased at the progress of his kindly plans in Eileen's behalf.

Furthermore, at the very instant of Slick's departure, Eileen was so harried by certain gestures and winks of Simmie's enjoining silence in the waiter's presence that she could do nothing but sink back into her chair and sit there, tense and expectant—waiting.

Then in an instant the waiting was over. The quietness of the place was broken by a rush of advancing footsteps on the floor below and on the stairs. Gruff voices sounded in commanding tones, and the waiter flung open the door and cried excitedly, "Police!"

"Police," repeated Simmie, and galvanized into action. He sprang to his feet and drew the trembling and terrified Eileen through another door just as the police rushed into the room.

As though held in the clutches of a horrible nightmare, Eileen found herself hurried along a dark hall, down steps, through another door and on into a dimly lighted back yard, to finally pause squarely before a group of men who waited there.

Shrinking from their bold gaze and so shaken by emotion that she could hardly stand, she heard a voice, it sounded far away, detached, a voice speaking in a world in which she had no part.

"The chief told me someone had tipped the paper off that there was a story here tonight. Give me a line on it somebody."

It seemed that Simmie could laugh in that other world, and it was an exultant laugh, too.

"A story! I thought you newspaper boys could scent one a mile away. I've got to get Mrs. Mannering away from here before they see her. It would be a rotten thing if the wife of the District Attorney was caught in this raid. Hot stuff just before election, eh?"

Still in a daze, Eileen caught a glimpse of bits of paper hastily produced and of scribbling pencils. Then hurried on, she found herself on a dark road with the clean, fresh odor of the country about her.

Systematic Reading Course Is Offered At Public Library

Do you want to do some systematic reading this winter? If you do, but don't know just what you want to read or just how to go about it, ask at the Public Library about the "Reading With a Purpose" series of reading courses. Two booklets, "English Literature" by W. N. Carlton and "Some Great American Books" by Dallas Lore Sharp, the second and third in the "Reading with a purpose" series, have been received by the Richmond library according to the statement of Miss Sarah McNeill, the librarian.

Miss McNeill reports that there is already much interest among library users in regard to these courses. The hundreds of people who have planned some day to better informed and better read, but have never quite found the time and place and impetus to begin—those who have planned some day to know, or renew acquaintance with Hardy, Fielding, Emerson, Wharton and other great authors, will find these courses just what they have been waiting for.

"Biology" by Vernon Kellogg, announced a week or two ago, began the series. Courses on economics, appreciation of music, psychology and other subjects are in preparation. The courses, and the books they recommend, may be borrowed from the Public Library.

Barrymore as "Beau Brummel"

John Barrymore who captured his audience by storm at the California last night in his inimitable presentation of "Beau Brummel," in the screen adaptation of the play by the same name by Clyde Fitch. Barrymore has again proven that he is without a peer in the art of portraying a character that some stars would not even attempt.

'BEAU BRUMMEL' SCORES HIT AT THE CALIFORNIA

Three long cheers for John Barrymore!

If we feel compelled to begin a review of a motion picture in this unconventional strain, forgive us. If our enthusiasm seems to be unmeasured and unrestrained, please repeat the forgiveness! We can't help it. It just leaps out of us, the elated and thrilling feeling.

What's it all about, it's about time for you to ask. The answer is "Beau Brummel," whose two day engagement began yesterday at the California Theatre. We were frankly captivated by the performance of the one and only Barrymore in this adaptation of the Clyde Fitch play, swept off our feet as we followed the thrilling romance of Beau Brummel, king of the dandies.

England of the period lives vividly, unforgettably, powerfully. You see the beaux and wits as they pass snuff boxes, indulge in their intrigue and gallantries, the high scale of their living, the brilliance and verve of their bons mots, the charm of it all. But besides the charm there is pulsing drama, the sort that keeps you tense and startled, makes you live with the protagonists of the story.

Dorothy Farnum, the adapter, did a wonderful piece of work in this Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen. But then—so did everybody, from the star to the brilliant supporting cast, some of whom are Mary Astor, Carmel Myers, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Willard Louis, Richard Tucker, Ondre de Beranger.

All in all, the combination of play, star, producers, director—it would be criminal not to mention the superb skill and mastery of Director Harry Beaumont—is perfect, and a wonderful treat is in store for all the enthusiasts of the screen. Other features include "Mendelssohn Music Reel," "Topics of the Day," "Aesop's Fables," Larry Canelo, at the organ.

LaMarr-Novarro Co-Starred In Richmond Film

Villains in one of the biggest pictures of last season, they are now the hero and heroine of one of the biggest films of the new year. Barbara La Marr and Ramon Novarro, who both made their start to fame in Rex Ingram's "The Prisoner of Zenda," in which they were the conspirators, have got together again in the leading roles of "Thy Name Is Woman," the Fred Niblo production presented by Louis B. Mayer through Metro, which will be shown for the last time tonight at the Richmond Theatre.

The impetus the two players received in popularity from the Ingram production has brought them both to "Thy Name Is Woman" as stars. According to advance reports, the picture, which is a story of love and revenge in the Spanish Pyrenees, gives them their greatest acting opportunity yet.

Other features include "On the Go," a screaming comedy; "Topics of the Day" and "Aesop's Fables." Although Colleen Moore has for some time occupied a place in popular favor equal to any other of the screen's luminaries, formal elevation to stardom has only been achieved in her latest dramatic vehicle, "So Big," adapted by First National from Edna Ferbers new novel, which comes to the Richmond Theatre commencing tomorrow. Supporting Colleen are such distinguished screen figures as Ben Lyon, John Bowers, Wallace Beery, Ford Sterling, Dot Farley, Jean Hersholt, Sam De Grasse, Gladys Brockwell, Rosemary Theby, Phyllis Haver, Charlotte Merriam and Henry Hebert.

GORDON WINS ELKS TOURNEY

After playing 18 even holes on Saturday, Frank Gordon won the championship of the Richmond Elks lodge by defeating Dr. A. B. Hinkley by a "nose" in the final 18 holes at the Carquinez course on Sunday before a large and interested gallery. Play was even at the end of the thirty-sixth hole, but Gordon managed to win out by one stroke at the thirty-seventh.

LANES WIN AFTER FIFTEEN INNINGS

The Lane All-Star defeated the Craig All-Stars by a score of 8 to 7 in an exciting 15-inning game Sunday. Eby and Lane formed the battery for the winners, while Craig and Perry worked for the Craig All-Stars. Page and Chambers started for the winners, while Moore performed most brilliantly for the losers. The lineups follow:

Lanes—Lane, catcher; Eby, pitcher; Malina, first base; Page, second base; Chambers, short-stop; Potts, third base; Goldworthy, left field; Damon, center field.

BERLENBACH IS K. O. WINNER OVER SOLOMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—King Solomon, the Panama heavyweight, fell with the shades of night at the Polo Grounds this evening when Paul Berlenbach, the world's light heavyweight champion stopped him in the ninth round of the main event of the National Sports Alliance show, the last of the outdoor season. The lights were on in the big baseball arena, but they were all out for the king when Referee Jack O'Sullivan led him from the cruel "Astoria Assassin."

Solomon had fallen three times in the eighth round from whistling lift hooks to the jaw that came after he had taken seven rounds of stout punching and could stand no more. The king bounced up after each knockdown, but was tottering about leaning through puffed and bleeding features at the bell, with the crowd yelling to have it stopped.

MOTIONLESS MOVIE SHOWS SERIES GAME

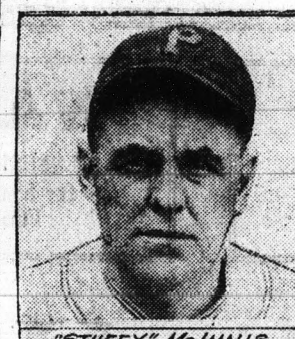

Vic Aldridge made a hero of himself again yesterday when, backed up by the slugging of his team, he kept the Senators down to three runs, although hit fairly hard.

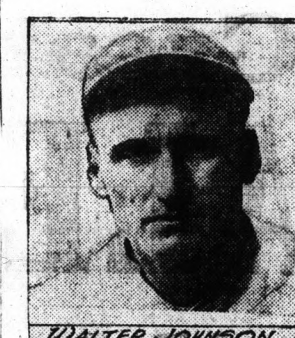

Tom Zachary, veteran of the 1924 series and also one of the winning hurlers at the time tried to finish Coveleskie's bad work yesterday, but was hit from the box.

Stuffy McInnis, first sacker for the Pittsburgh Pirates, did honor unto himself yesterday when he stopped a hot one that if missed would have allowed another score for the Senators.

Walter Johnson got the pirates on his hip in the Sunday game and in spite of their struggles wouldn't let them wiggle off. He held them without a run the whole game.

U. OF C. DOUBTFUL

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—Any confidence of an easy victory over the Cards next Saturday which University of Southern California students held as a result of the defeat by the Olympic club were dispelled last week when the Winged O triumphed over the mighty California. The game, in the opinion of the grid experts, has resolved itself in an even affair.

WOODMEN BEAT PABCOS IN TEN TIGHT INNINGS

The Modern Woodmen baseball took another scalp Sunday, when they defeated the Pabco Products team at Kenny Park, Oakland, in a hot ten inning game by a score of 13 to 12.

This was the opening game of a series of 15 in the Spalding Winter league and a large crowd was on hand. Although a total of 25 runs were rung up, it was an interesting game from the spectators' viewpoint, as there was plenty of slugging. The score was tied three times.

In the tenth and final inning with two on, Murphy drove the ball over right field fence for a home run and the Woodmen came home with another victory under their belts.

Batteries—Ming, R. Hanson and Mortozo for the Woodmen and Carricker, Scholtz and Burren for the Pabcos. Madden was the official.

VIC ALDRIDGE PITCHES HARD GAME TO WIN

By DAMON RUNYON
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 12.—A bulldog of baseball led a bulldog fight by the Pittsburgh Pirates for the fifth game of the World's Series this afternoon, tugging, and worrying away at adversity until he finally dragged off the victory by a score of 6 to 3.

Vic Aldridge is the man who held on, and by holding, kept Pittsburg in the struggle for the baseball championship. The series now stands three games to two in Washington's favor, with the clubs moving back to Pittsburgh tonight.

Once it seemed that the Senators had shaken loose the grip of all the Pirates on confidence, and spirit, but even then Vic Aldridge was holding on.

He is a sturdy fellow, this bulldog of baseball, with sturdy heart. He is a Hoosier out of Hoosierdom which is Indiana and they say he used to be a schoolmaster. He has thick arms, and big hands, and a wise pitching head, and he can hold on.

He won the second game of the series for the Pirates by much the same process of holding on over in Pittsburgh. He gives you the impression of a man who will always be holding on against doubt and fear and all vicissitudes. He is a man who was made for holding on.

The pow-wow is for Redmen and Pocahontas lodge members and Boy Scouts of Onetah Troop. The final details were worked out at the meeting held in Redmen's hall last night presided over by Frank Marchetti, sachem. The Women's West Side Improvement Association met in the Masonic temple this afternoon and after the regular business meeting Mrs. H. G. Studman presented a program on the History and Landmarks of California. The reader stated that she helped in the work, and told of some of the circumstances.

Mrs. Geo. Topping presided and read some of Bret Hart's poems concerning California, and a history of the Bear Flag was given.

At the close of the program Mrs. Leroy Alexander and Mrs. Joel Bottom served dainty refreshments in the form of sandwiches and tea.
